FUNERAL PARTY SAVES DWELLING

People Attending Funeral of Levi Shindlecker, Formerly of Fairfield, Called to Save Burning Home and Succeeded in their Efforts

The funeral of Levi Shindlecker, formerly of Fairfield, was responsible for the home of Daniel Warrenfeltz, at Greensburg, two miles south of Smithsburg, which caught fire Friday afternoon, being saved from destruction.

The blaze, caused by an over-heated pipe, was discovered shortly before 1 o'clock by Mrs. Warrenfeltz. She hurried across the roadway to the home of Levi Shindlecker, where the funeral of Mr. Shindlecker was being held, and summoned assistance.

Twenty-five men, who were attending the services, immediately went to the scene. Part of them banded into a bucket brigade while the remainder fought the flames in another manner. By hard work they succeeded in extinguishing the blaze. The damage was covered by insurance.

The circumstances surrounding the affair are just a bit mysterious. Had it not been for the fact that the funeral was being held the house and contents would have been destroyed.

SMALL POX

Hospital in Nearby Maryland Town Has One Case.

There is a case of small-pox in the Frederick City Hospital—a little boy who has been there for some time, for treatment. It is thought that the disease was brought in by a man from Lovettsville, Va., where small-pox prevails, who was at the hospital for an operation for appendicitis, and who was in the same ward as the child. The case was at first thought to be chicken-pox.

The hospital has been quarantined, and every precaution is being taken to prevent the spread of the disease among other inmates of the hospital. Of course, no new cases will be admitted until the quarantine is raised. The case is said to be a mild one, and no serious outbreak is feared.

Dr. Thomas B. Johnson will remain at the hospital and be in strict quarantine, having complete supervision of the institution. Two police have been placed at the hospital during the day and two at night, to see that no one enters the building and that supplies for the hospital must be delivered in packages not to be returned. Deliveries must be made on the outside.

MRS. S. MORGAN SMITH

Mrs. Emma R. Smith, one of York's best known residents and widow of S. Morgan Smith, died suddenly Friday morning at 11 o'clock at the family residence. Mrs. Smith, who is well known here, had been in apparent good health up until last Wednesday night, when she suffered an attack of acute indigestion. Thursday her condition became much improved and it was thought she was recovering. Friday morning she suffered a relapse and died suddenly without any premonition of death.

She was 76 years old and for many years was a member of the Moravian church. She was one of the most liberal contributors to the church.

Her husband, S. Morgan Smith, was a former pastor of the First Moravian congregation at Canal Dover, Ohio. After leaving the ministry, Mr. Smith returned to York and organized the S. Morgan Smith company, which in recent years has developed into one of York's important industries.

Mrs. Smith was a daughter of the late John Fahs Sr., and was born and reared on the Fahs homestead, northwest of York. She is survived by five children, C. Elmer Smith, S. WAS RUN DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

Well Known York County Farmer Caught by Automobile and Seriously Hurt. Wanted to Go on his Journey. Taken to Hospital.

Abraham Myers, aged about sixty-five years, residing at Menges' Mills, was run over and seriously injured by an automobile driven by M. M. Nicely, a traveling shoe salesman, in York on Friday.

Myers is in the York hospital with a broken shoulder blade and other injuries. The auto weighs 4,000 pounds and it is remarkable that the man escaped with his life. Nicely was given a hearing Friday afternoon, charged with reckless driving and violating a city ordinance, but although about a dozen witnesses were heard the charge was not proved and Nicely was discharged.

Detective Fickes, however, served a warrant on Nicely, charging him with assault and battery, and he gave bail for a hearing.

From evidence so far produced Nicely was not running his machine at more than ordinary speed, considering the place, and it was shown that Myers was in a hurry to get to the Hanover car and started across the square without looking or heeding. Some express the belief that he fell just before the car struck him.

Nicely stopped his car and helped to pick Myers up. The man then continued to the Hanover car and actually got inside, determined to go home. Nicely and others induced him to remain and receive professional care, but it was only after the trolley conductor declared that he would not start the car until Myers got off that he consented. Then he was loaded into Nicely's car and taken to the York hospital.

MERCHANTS COMPLAIN

Claim People are Bringing Bad Eggs to their Stores.

Several local store keepers complain of incubator eggs being brought to their places of business along with perfectly fresh eggs and causing them no little trouble. One merchant said this morning that he sold a dozen eggs to a customer and every one of them was found later to be bad. The undesirable eggs are usually with many good ones and they are hard to detect at a glance. A heavy penalty is prescribed for this offense and those selling eggs to local stores might do well to exercise a little care in the selection of the kind they bring.

MAY COME HOME

Mrs. Adams May be Brought to her Home Near Arendtsville.

James Adams, of near Arendtsville, went to Harrisburg this morning in the hope of bringing home his wife who was accidentally shot earlier in the week. As the surgeons feel that the injured woman may live for several weeks or longer the family is anxious that she be at home rather than in the hospital where, it is conceded, the bullet cannot be removed. There is no change in her condition reported.

TORREON FALLS; LOSS OVER 5000

Villa is Complete Master of Northern Mexico.

500 PRISONERS MASSACRED

Huerta's Stronghold Is Captured After Six-Day Battle in the Streets—Fleeing Rebels Trapped.

Torreón, Mex., April 4.—Not only is Pancho Villa's rebel army in undisputed possession of Torreón, but his army is in close pursuit of the fleeing Federal army, recently defending the city. The cavalry, under Generals Hernandez and Ortega, sent in pursuit of General Velasco and his fleeing Federals, overtook the rearguard of the Federals at San Pedro de Los Colonias, and in the fight which followed 100 Federals were killed and 153 taken prisoners. The rebel losses were not given.

A courier from the south reported to Villa that the Federals fled into an ambulance prepared by General Rosalío de Huarache, where Velasco's troops made their last desperate stand. Hernandez sent word to Villa that he would attempt to drive the Federals back toward Torreón, and asked Villa to be prepared to annihilate them.

General Velasco was attempting to make his way to Saltillo when he ran into Hernandez's troops.

Torreón was the last stronghold held by Huerta in northern Mexico. The town, strewn with the dead and wounded of a six-day battle, was occupied by the victorious rebels on the heels of the flying Federals, the remnants of General Refugio Velasco's army.

In all the fighting no foreigner was killed or injured.

The losses have not been compiled, but General Villa estimates his own losses at 500 killed and 1500 wounded and the Federal loss at 1000 killed and 2500 wounded, with an unknown number of prisoners. This is by far the largest number of casualties in any of the many battles that have marked the Mexican revolution of the last four years.

Great supplies of food, ammunition and artillery and stores of cotton fell into the rebel hands by the capture of Torreón.

More than 500 Federal prisoners are believed to have been massacred by Villa's soldiers after the fall of Torreón. The lives of the Mexican regulars were spared, but the "volunteers," who formerly fought in the Madero revolution and then went over to the Huerta forces, were executed without trial.

Soldiers were held in readiness to suppress their fellows in the firing squad when they became exhausted by the work of slaughter.

Federal captives who are kept at work burying the dead, repairing the railroad tracks and stringing telegraph wires, narrate horrible tales of the battle in Torreón. When the Federal officers saw the day going against them they walked through the hospitals with revolvers in their hands, compelling the wounded to crawl to the firing line and help defend the city. Those who were too badly wounded to comply were shot.

The taking of Torreón, 500 miles from El Paso, Tex., the nearest point in the United States by railroad, marks the climax of the first campaign of the revolution to oust Huerta from Mexico City, and eleven days of continuous fighting in and around the city. It gives the Constitutionalists virtual control over the whole northern tier of Mexican states.

THREATEN BECKER WITNESS

"Bridge" Webber's Partner Appeals to Whitman For Protection.

New York, April 4.—Threats of death if he visited District Attorney Whitman's office for the purpose of supplying information to be used at the second trial of ex-Police Lieutenant Charles Becker forced Raphael Brownstein to ask the district attorney for protection.

Brownstein, known as Brown in the underworld, was a former partner of "Bridge" Webber in the latter's pool room.

GENERAL MAAS.

Federal Commander Who Tried to Relieve Torreón.

Pancho Villa reported to General Carranza that he had captured Torreón. Reports were current in Mexico City that the Federals had been defeated at Torreón and that the city had been surrendered to the rebels. The fact that the Huerta government failed to give out any information regarding the situation in the northern city seemed to lend strength to the report. The Federal troops sent to relieve Torreón were under command of General Maas, who fought bravely.

SOFT COAL MINERS REFUSE PEACE PLAN

Turn Down Operators' Proposals and Renew Fight.

Philadelphia, April 4.—With determination to win some concessions, the union officials of the soft coal miners of central Pennsylvania, in conference with the operators here, renewed their fight to maintain the present wage scale and also to get relief from car pushing.

Before the executive session opened Patrick Gilroy, union president of the central Pennsylvania district, said:

"We are going to turn down the operators' proposals flat. We will positively stand for no reduction in the miners' wages. We want relief from car pushing, with the present wage scale undisturbed."

The miners had waited nearly all day for advice from John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in response to their telegram, asking him what action they should take on the operators' proposals. No message came from him, and Gilroy and his followers determined to assume responsibility in refusing to accept the peace terms.

The operators had suggested reductions in wages sufficient to recompense them for moving some of the heavy cars from the mine recesses.

20,000 More Miners Out.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 4.—Approximately 20,000 coal miners are idle in the Washington, Pa. region, a part of district No. 6, according to reports from that place. More than 19,000 of these are refusing to work, despite the urgings of officials, until the wage scale has been definitely adjusted. About 800 are on strike at the Hazel mines in the same district.

J., as his wife, did not appear for trial today on charges of improper behavior, brought by the city authorities.

Foster's attorneys said he is ill in New York. Foster is also accused of violating the Mann white slave act, in bringing the girl from New Jersey to Mobile. The case is scheduled to be acted upon by the federal grand jury next month.

SECOND SHIP MAY BE LOST IN STORM

Belief Grows That Southern Cross Was Wrecked.

SEALER CARRIED CREW OF 173

The Funeral Vessel Bellaventure, With Fifty-eight Boddies Aboard, Caught in Ice Floes.

St. Johns, N. F., April 4.—Blocked by the great masses of floating ice and unable to make progress in the blinding snow and against a terrific gale that is sweeping this section, rescue ships failed in their efforts to go to the aid of the Southern Cross, imprisoned somewhere in the ice floes, together with 173 members of her crew.

Fears that the sealer has been crushed and that her crew has been frozen to death or are lost on the fields of floating ice were revived when government authorities stated that the vessel had not arrived at Channel, N. F., as previously reported, and that an extended search for the missing ship would begin as soon as the blizzard and gale abate and make it safe to navigate vessels.

The Southern Cross, formerly used in Antarctic exploration by Sir Ernest Shackleton, carried a crew of 173 men and was loaded with more than 17,000 seal skins, trophies of a hunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The Southern Cross started homeward a week ago, and passed safely down the west coast, through Cabot strait and along the southern coast. On Tuesday morning she was sighted off Cape Pine, nineteen miles west of Cape Race. Since then the blizzard struck this section and nothing further has been heard from her.

Messages sent to New York stated that when the Newfoundland was caught in the ice 100 of her men were on the floe, and that various vessels have picked up more than eighty bodies of men who were frozen to death and that nearly a score of survivors were found.

The message stated that the Newfoundland's men were bringing the pelts of the seals toward that steamship when overtaken by the blizzard, and that the Newfoundland has not a single seal skin now on board.

The other vessel reported a catch of 28,000 seals. This would mean that the Newfoundland's financial loss is perhaps $70,000, as each skin is worth about $2.50. The Newfoundland is reported to be undamaged.

The steamship Bellaventure, bringing fifty-eight bodies and some of the survivors of the Newfoundland to St. Johns, is blocked in the ice. Many of the rescued sealers are reported to be dying, and the death list will be increased before the rescue steamship arrives.

TWO DIE LOOKING AT FIGHT

Fight Kills Aged Man and Woman When Men Engage in Brawl.

Worcester, Mass., April 4.—Patrick Eagleton, seventy years old, and Mrs. Dennis Arsenault, sixty years old, of Spencer, Mass., dropped dead from fright in the street as they witnessed a three-cornered fight between Martin Niederberger, a chauffeur, and Stanley Orutt and Charles Bannan, the employees of a cereal company.

Orutt and Bannan, while distributing samples, had called at the home of Walter Watson, Niederberger's employer. Mrs. Watson claims she was insulted by one of the men and informed her husband.

Watson and Niederberger started out after the two distributors and located them at the trolley waiting station. A fight followed and Mr. Eagleton, who was waiting for a car, collapsed from fright and died. Mrs. Arsenault sank to the floor of the station and died.

MONROE DOCTRINE NOT LIKED ABROAD

Chiefly Unpopular For What It Has Not Done.

DENOUNCED BY SAVANTS

English Journalist Says United States Is Responsible For Condition of Anarchy in Latin America.

Philadelphia, April 4.—Something of what Europe thinks of the Monroe Doctrine was told to an audience of several hundred persons at the second session in the Hotel Walton of the eighteenth annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

The subject for discussion was "The Present Status of the Monroe Doctrine."

The speaker who told of Europe's attitude was A. Maurice Low, chief American correspondent of the London Morning Post. He said the doctrine is unpopular in Europe, not so much for what it is as for what it is not.

Europe, he said, accorded America the perfect right to take such steps as she might think fit for her own protection, but, having taken those steps, America could not hope to escape the accompanying burden of responsibility in the eyes of Europe, he said.

"Having propounded the Monroe Doctrine as its foreign policy," said Mr. Low, "it devolves upon the United States to protect the lives and property of foreigners in Latin America, if the nations of Europe are to be deterred by the United States from protecting them."

"The United States must be held largely responsible for the condition of anarchy which now disgraces Latin America. If there were no Monroe Doctrine, Latin America would have a wholesome respect for the warships of England and Germany. As it is, Latin America openly laughs at Europe, sneers in derision at the United States and wallows in the pit of anarchy."

"The broadening of the doctrine into a Pan-American policy, to take Latin America in as co-partners of the United States in upholding the doctrine, would only throw another discordant element into the world's political cauldron and brew up more trouble for all concerned. Europe is willing to abide by and respect any policy the United States sees fit to set forth regarding Latin America, but Europe refuses to be dictated to by Central America."

Other speakers were Albert Bushnell Hart, of Harvard university, who presided; Charles H. Sherrill and Joseph Wheelock, of St. Louis.

The speakers generally agreed that the times have outgrown the strict interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, so long held dear by some American statesmen. It was contended that the doctrine has served the purpose of fostering the growth of independent states in Central and South America so well that the attitude of the United States toward them should no longer be paternal, but fraternal, those states being now well able to join with the United States in asserting and protecting their own sovereignty.

A new danger—an alleged increasing infusion of negro blood among the whites of the Americas—was set forth by one of the speakers, Rear Admiral F. E. Chadwick, U. S. N. He asserted that America is face to face with the problem of checking the mixture and if it is not checked "our decadence has begun."

Admiral Chadwick made these remarks in passing, while discussing the stated topic for the meeting. The speaker added that the only hope of ever establishing a peaceful and stable government in Mexico and the only chance of there ever being friendly relations between that country and our own lies in "educating the Mexican masses in the A, B, C of civilization."

Paper Imports Reach High Water Mark.

Washington, April 4.—Imports of paper for use in printing newspapers and books aggregated 287,000,000 pounds in the first five months under the new tariff law, doubling the total for the corresponding period a year ago. At the present rate of importation the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce estimated that the total imports of printing paper in the fiscal year ending June 30 at approximately 535,000,000 pounds, compared with 129,000,000 in 1912.

WITHDRAWS

Matter of York Post Office is again Undecided.

State Senator Harry Washburn sent a letter to Congressman A. R. Brodbeck asking the withdrawal of his name from consideration "as a candidate for postmaster of York." Again is the race open for the York post office. Many are again asserting that Mr. Brodbeck's secretary, Clarence A. Geasey, will eventually land the plum, but there is an element of Democrats strongly favorable to the appointment of ex-Congressman E. D. Ziegler.

The production which will appear here Thursday, April 9, is entirely new except the title. The book is upon new and original lines and is the work of Owen Davis and Bud Fisher.—advertisement

Giant Oysters.

The petrified oyster weighing three pounds dredged at Paversham, shows that at one time some of our natives must have rivalled American oysters in size. In the seventeenth century gigantic British oysters were occasionally seen. In Moullet's "Health Improvement," published 1655, we read: "Alexander, with his friends and physicians, wondered to find oysters in the Indian seas a foot long; and in Pliny's time they marveled at an oyster which might be divided into three. But I dare, and do truly, affirm that at my eldest brother's wedding at Aldham Hall, Essex, I did see a Peldon oyster divided into eight good morsels, whose shell was nothing less than that of Alexander's."—London Chronicle.

Term Offended Castro.

Diplomatic documents are ticklish matters to translate, as the Paris Temps points out apropos of the official text of the Franco-German agreement. Three years ago a mistranslation led to very strained relations between Venezuela and Holland. The Dutch consul at Caracas, referring to a trivial incident, wrote to the Venezuelan foreign minister that "een booze droom," an evil dream, threatened to disturb peace between the nations. This the foreign office translator rendered "maladetto spirito," a "cursed spirit." President Castro took this to be a reference to himself, and ordered diplomatic relations to be broken off with Holland. But an interpreter woke him from the bad dream.

TRIED GRAINS FOR NORTHWEST.

Experiments which have been conducted during the past ten years at the South Dakota experiment station under the direction of the United States department of agriculture have resulted in the following recommendations: as to best varieties of wheat, oats and barley to grow in the Dakotas and adjoining territory: Wheat—Kubanka durum, Haynes bluestem, Red Fife and Fife. Oats—Swedish Select and Sixty Day. Barley—For the eastern district, Manchuria and Odessa; for the central district, Haughehen, and for the western, Ontario and Merlot. The department names as the main requirements for crop improvement and increased production, better varieties, better seed, better rotations, better soil treatment, better tillage and cultivation and more favorable economic conditions. Farmers desiring the details of the experiments and suggestions above referred to may secure them without charge by making application to the division of publications, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for the bulletin, "Experiments With Wheat, Oats and Barley in South Dakota."

THE MEANEST MAN.

About the meanest man on top of God's footstool is the fellow whose wife has darned his socks, sewed buttons on and patched his pants, washed his dirty duds and got him three meals a day for nobody knows how many years and yet who, in spite of all this labor and service and a whole lot more, keeps her so short of money that she has to get down on all fours every time she wants a nickel. Great Caesar! If she were the poorest kind of hired girl imaginable she would get at least $3 a week and board. But perhaps the chaps who constitute this tribe think that the pleasure of their company cancels the amount of cash due week by week and that their wives are really indebted to them for their clothes. The only fitting retribution that comes to such fellows is to marry a second time and have their new wives read them the riot act and make them bend over the dough in large ways. This happens quite frequently and is calculated to exterminate those who are familiar with the tightwad tendencies of the victims.

HIGH PRICED TRASH.

With clover seed selling on retail markets at or near $7 a bushel, there would seem to be mighty little excuse for any farmer monkeying with cheap stuff from some other state which is more than likely to contain the seeds of many noxious weeds, besides dirt, sand and trash. The most of these cheap clover seeds are not even as good as the seed which is sold in the open market. A writer in one of the western papers has written an interesting article on this subject. He states that he has examined several samples of clover seed which he found to be full of dirt and trash. One of the samples contained Canada thistle, nine-eighths contained buckhorn, and ten contained dandelion. One sample contained 10,304 weed seeds to the pound. Including fourteen varieties. Besides dirt and trash. In view of the fact that from $14 to $16 per bushel was paid for clover seed that season, it meant a pretty lofty price for weed seed and dirt in the showdown.

RHEUMATICS.

A friend of the writer who is not far from the "eighty" milestone stated the other day that some years ago he was afflicted with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. He tried all the doctors in his locality, but without their being able to render him material relief. As a last resort he poured some kerosene on some flannel cloths and wrapped these about his knees, keeping them there for some time. He states that this simple treatment gave him relief and that he has not suffered from this ailment since. Of course it is possible that the treatment mentioned may not have had anything to do with the relief, but flannel cloths and kerosene are cheap and any one afflicted can prove or disprove the effectiveness of the cure to his own satisfaction.

THE COSTLY RAT.

Where it does not freeze in the barn or stables an effective rat trap may be made by filling a water pail half full of chaff and scattering bran over it with a few kernels of corn on top. This should be left for several nights. A few kernels of corn being added as it is eaten by the rats. When they have got used to going to the pail the chaff should be removed and water put in its place. A coating of bran should be placed on top of this, also a few kernels of corn. The rats will come as before, but will drown, having no footing. The approach of the rats to the pail will be made the easier by placing a board from the floor to the top of it.

BEES AND SKUNKS.

The contributor of an eastern paper who some weeks ago called attention to the fact that his dwindling hives of bees were due to the nightly attacks of skunks, of which he succeeded in catching three by setting traps in front of the hives, seems to have overlooked the fact that these attacks could be entirely prevented by putting a circle of fine meshed chicken fencing around each hive or the entire space occupied by the hives. It is a safe assumption that the destruction by the skunks of noxious insects would represent a mighty good interest return on the sum invested in the fencing.

Touching.

A teacher trying to impress on her children the rightness of kindness toward all animals, took them for a walk, to bring the lesson home to them. Hearing a scream from little Johnny, she asked: "What's the matter, Johnny?" "I've been sitting on a hornet," was the tearful response, "and I'm afraid I've hurt the poor thing."—Delineator.

BUILDING MODEL TOWN FOR SAWMILL WORKERS.

Lumber Company Erecting an Up to Date Settlement For Employees.

All the conveniences of up to date city apartments except a janitor, with the additional benefits of living in detached houses, will be enjoyed by workmen employed by the Red River Lumber company, which is building a model town at Westwood, Lassen county, Cal., in the heart of the company's timber lands. Household drudgery will be banished by modern appliances installed in the homes of all the employees, and every house will be as sanitary, comfortable and convenient in arrangements as the architects can make them.

The company designs to reforest the timber tract as the lumber is cut, and also to make Westwood a permanent town.

T. B. Walker, a big lumberman and practitioner of conservation, who is treasurer of the company, is in personal charge of the work. Despite the fact that it has been only six or eight months since the town was laid out, it already has a population of 2,000, and it is estimated that next summer, when the work in the mill and woods starts, there will be fully 6,000 persons living there.

The railroad was completed to the new town on Jan. 1, but previously the parts for the first mill and many of the other buildings were hauled over the mountains for sixty miles. A second mill is now being built.

PLAN TO BEAUTIFY BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Streets and Parks to Be Improved—The Women Lend a Hand.

At a cost not to exceed $10,000 in three years a landscape designer and city beautifier expert is to be employed by the Birmingham city commission. This movement is the outgrowth of a city beautification campaign recently launched by Commissioner Ward, when active work looking toward the cleaning and beautifying of the city was begun. City parks will be made over, systematized and a permanent commission will be appointed to aid the new designer in his work.

Birmingham women have taken up the "city beautifier" work initiated by the municipality. Through their efforts co-operation of the railroads is sought. A letter sent to officials of the lines reads:

"All through the north and the east the great corporations, such as the Pennsylvania and New York Central systems, and many others for years have proceeded with the planting of ivy, clinging vines, etc., around their shops, roundhouses and other property, as well as with the hanging of grass plots wherever practicable. They have found that it pays.

"We sincerely hope that your company will back up the movement and that it will only be a short time before all unsightly rights of way, smoky roundhouses, etc., will present a very artistic and attractive appearance."

TO BEAUTIFY CINCINNATI.

A Planning Commission Has Been Created to Improve the City.

A city planning commission and city department of finance are created in provisions recently adopted by the charter commission of Cincinnati. The aim of the planning commission is to make Cincinnati a "city beautiful." The department of finance is placed under a director appointed by council, whose duties in general will be similar to those of the present city auditor and treasurer combined.

The report on the creation of a city planning commission, which was adopted, provides as follows:

The commission to be of seven members, four appointed by the mayor from the citizenship and three ex officio, the mayor, the director of highways and the president of the board of commissioners of parks and recreation, with power to vote. The term shall be six years. The body shall draw maps showing streets, alleys, bridges, etc., and also locations proposed by it for any new public building, civic centers, parks, playgrounds, etc. It shall have power to control and preserve landmarks and plan and design location of public buildings, harbors, viaducts, etc. Council and all boards and commissions shall supply it with copies of ordinances as to location of public buildings, alteration of streets, boulevards, parks, etc., when introduced. The same shall apply to any ordinance as to location of bridge, viaduct, tunnel, subway or elevated railway, etc.

If the planning commission does not approve of the plans it shall report to council in writing with its reasons for such nonapproval within ten days from the introduction of ordinance, and such disapproval shall act as veto unless council or the board or commission shall pass the objectionable ordinance by not less than two-thirds vote of entire membership of council or four-fifths of the board or commission. It may make recommendations to corporations or individuals as to location of buildings, etc.

Moving-Picture Education.

The moving picture as an educator has had many successful trials, says the Politische Korrespondent (Berlin), and in proof of the assertion refers to the pictures on sanitation, natural history, botany, anatomy, etc. The latest step in that direction was made recently by Dr. Ludwig Munch, of Darmstadt, who employed the motion picture to demonstrate mathematical problems, "and by this means enabled those students who were unable to grasp the questions and methods of solution in their original form to thoroughly understand the work."

THE POPULARITY OF THE SIMPLE ONE-PIECE DRESS STILL GROWING.

The plainness of these little dresses makes them economical as well as becoming. By merely adding one of the new girdles or sashes or an unobtrusive collar of organza or net, the frock is perfectly suited to almost any afternoon affair. While the Oriental belt is not as much favored as it was last season, there are still a few very attractive ones being worn; the brightly colored Neapolitan sash, knotted at the side, is wonderfully effective with a dark dress. No. 8096 is developed in plain terra cotta duvetyn. It closes at the side front, has one of the new yokes, a three-piece skirt. This dress may be copied in size 36, with 4 1/2 yards of 42 inch material. Cotton duvetyn may be purchased from $1.25 a yard and up. No. 8095 is a dress that is perfectly suited to the street, shopping trips or for a business dress; it is developed in dark brown serge with a skirt of fine check in brown and white. The blouse has a tuck over either shoulder, a full length sleeve and a small sailor collar. The skirt has a shaped yoke, the lower section being fitted in with several dark tucks. This dress requires for size 36, 4 1/2 yards of 42 inch material. No. 8096—sizes 34 to 42. No. 8095—sizes 34 to 42. Each pattern 15 cents.

A HOPEFUL MOVEMENT.

To me city planning is the most hopeful of all municipal movements—first, because it means a visualization of the city as a possible agency of great good to mankind. Heretofore we have looked upon it as an evil, as a behemoth. Now we are beginning to realize that it contains great possibilities of good; that poverty can be minimized; that the houses people live in can be controlled; that the city of tomorrow need not be what the city of today is—a menace to our civilization.

Over a hundred cities in this country have already undertaken ambitious town planning projects. Each week adds new cities to the list. Experts are being employed; the architect, the landscape artist and the engineer are being called in for the solution of these problems. America awoke to this problem later than did Germany, France or England, but with our unbounded resources, with our fertile imaginations, I believe that in another generation the American city will outstrip even the cities of Germany in its municipal achievements. For it must be remembered that the American city is on a democratic basis. It is acquiring freedom to act under home rule legislation, and whatever the failures of democracy may have been in the past, I have faith to believe in the evidence already before us that democracy will solve the problems which now confront it more effectively than have even the most advanced nations of the old world.—Dr. F. C. Howe.

ENTERPRISING FRIENDLINESS.

How Decatur Citizens Won the Hearts of Incoming Locomotive Workers.

When an industry moves from one community to another the change means for many of its employees deserting homes dearly paid for, taking children out of school, breaking of church and lodge affiliations.

It was for this reason that Decatur, Ill., through its chamber of commerce, determined to do everything in its power to make the locomotive shopmen employed by the Wabash railroad like their new place of residence when the road moved its machinery from the old shops in Springfield to the new plant in Decatur, one of the largest of its kind in the world.

When they learned that they were to be transferred to Decatur the shopmen sent a committee to that city to investigate. The report was unfavorable. The shopmen were informed that vacant houses were few, that rents were high and board excessive.

It was then that the Decatur chamber of commerce interested itself. An investigation of almost every boarding house in the city disproved the report that board was excessive. A meeting of builders was called, and, though no definite promises were secured as to how many houses they would erect, the chamber satisfied itself that enough would be provided by the following spring.

Through its secretary, John M. Byrne, the chamber compiled a list of boarding houses, secured the names of the shopmen who were coming and encouraged real estate men to write them with a view to finding out their needs. On the morning the advance guard of the newcomers, some bringing their wives and children, were due to arrive the chamber of commerce officials, accompanied by thirty citizens, each with his automobile, met the train, escorted the shopmen to the waiting machines and took them on a ten mile ride over the principal streets and through the park.

At the end of the ride any lingering feeling of prejudice and hostility had been removed and shopmen shook hands with their hosts. The news traveled back to Springfield, with the result that shopmen who had been planning to go elsewhere decided to remain with the Wabash and make Decatur their home.

It required little effort for a city to show itself human as well as enterprising.—Survey.

Chicago Social Recreation.

West park No. 2 in Chicago, known as Stanford park, recently celebrated the close of its third year of play—a very busy year of genuine social recreation as is shown by a perusal of the director's brief page of statistics. There was a total attendance of 750,116 persons, 2,940 of whom organized into clubs; 68,000 used the reading room and 128,000 the swimming pool. These numbers can be as Director Teller advises, interpreted only in terms of "justice, neighborliness, democracy, good citizenship and brotherhood."

Town Patriotism in Luxembourg.

Though "town patriotism" exists all over the world, nowhere, perhaps, is it fiercer than in the little grand duchy of Luxembourg. The tourist can turn it to excellent advantage. When he arrives at the inn of any little town he should get into conversation with the master, or better still, with the mistress, of the house, and mention that at the last town at which he stayed the best and cheapest meals he ever had in his life were served. Madame will depart to the kitchen determined to demonstrate to the tourist that he has never in his life before really had a decently cooked meal. And by the time for coffee and cigars he will come near to believing it. The finest cooks in Europe are women of Luxembourg.

THE EASTER HOLIDAYS

call for a general refurbishing of the wardrobe. It is the season of new things.

The advertising in the newspaper reflects the season.

It is new and newsworthy. It is bright in its suggestions of the latest fashion ideas—new fabrics, new colors, new patterns.

Often it seems as though the most interesting feature in the newspaper is the advertising.

Certainly there is no feature that is more helpful to a large proportion of our readers.

You are reading the advertising, of course?

Explains Baseball's Popularity.

Nothing equals baseball as a popular sport. Baseball stimulates the mind and invigorates, instead of exhausts, the body. It can be played in any field, at almost no cost. Expense is the handicap which keeps tennis and golf out of the running as great popular sports. A baseball game may be played in two hours—an advantage which will ever make it more popular than cricket as an international game.

Life-Giving Properties of Colors.

Experiments show that the order of colors ranked as to their life-giving properties will be: blue, violet, yellow, red and green. Thus, if a patient is put in a hospital where green predominates he has a far slimmer chance of speedy recovery than if he were comfortably fixed in a blue room.

Big League Stories

By CHARLES E. VAN LOAN

II.—SWEENEY TO SANGUINETTI TO SCHULTZ

From "The Ten Thousand Dollar Arm and Other Tales of the Big League"

Copyright, 1912, by Small, Maynard & Company

It took some time to make the arrangements. The man who trained the baboons demanded money. It was pointed out to him that he would secure a great deal of advertising, which was better than money. After some talk he capitulated. Then the baboons had to be trained to march down the aisle, carrying bouquets. There were eight of them, and they were particularly homely brutes, but, like most unhandsome people, they were sagacious.

They took to the banquet carrying out like forty-second street Johnnies. Excellent! Mr. Harley Q. Walker was pleased with himself, the management was pleased with him, and the newspaper men would be on hand to watch the parade of the flowering baboons. Mr. Walker calculated that it should be worth a column and pictures to every paper in town.

We now have thirteen characters in the cast—Sweeney, Schultz, Sanguinetti, the little lady in the box, the press agent and the eight baboons. Destiny sent the fourteenth actor in the drama, the opening of the second act. The fourteenth actor was fat, red in the face and of fitful, troubled ideas. His name makes no difference at all, though he told the police afterward that it was John Smith.

An usher looked at John Smith doubtfully as he seated him in the very last row upon an aisle.

"Keep your eyes on that souze," he warned his companion.

John Smith oozed into his seat. He found the music soothing and, with a series of nervous jerks and quivers, fell asleep and dreamed of strange things.

In the upper box Sanguinetti and Sweeney looked out over the hall, trying to find the third man from the end. Schultz slumbered fitfully, for he was tired, having played pachonle on the train the night before. The scornful little lady counted the house and sniffed.

Out in the lobby Mr. Walker and the trainer marshaled the eight flower-bearing baboons.

"The house is dark for the next song," said the press agent, "and that's the time we'd better herd the monkeys into their positions. She lights up right-angled triangles on the stage, the finale of the act. Now, let's see—four more minutes and then to the other, and you're to send 'em down with the flowers after the third curtain call. The newspaper men are all down in front."

"Did you give 'em my picture?" asked the trainer anxiously.

"Surest thing you know!" lied Harley Q. gibbly. "They'll probably want to interview you afterward." They did too.

"All right," said the trainer. "All set? Hup! You, Battling Nelson, quit that!"

Battling Nelson, a blond baboon with a blue face and pink whiskers, showed his teeth in a deprecatory smile, and the procession began to move.

The lights were low when the flower bearers entered the auditorium. The stage was deserted, save for a very big woman with a very little voice, who was singing a song to a greenish property moon. The house was absolutely quiet save for the vocal struggles of the large lady upon the stage.

At that very moment John Smith, dreaming of pink lizards and purple mice, awoke with a snort and a gurgle. He jerked his head about to make sure of his surroundings, and in the shadowy gloom of the place he gazed upon a solemn procession of dog-faced apes with bouquets in their hands. The baboons were passing along the runway behind the last row of seats, and they were so close that John Smith might have touched them.

Now, every one knows that when a man is accustomed to pink lizards and purple mice, baboons with roses in their hands are a terrible shock to his nervous system.

John Smith leaped to his feet with a hoarse howl of terror, and even as he yelled he launched a tremendous kick at the baboon nearest to him.

Then everything happened at once. You can kick a baboon if you see him first, but you cannot make him like it. A baboon is sensitive. He doesn't look it, but you never can tell from the color of a baboon's face what his disposition may be.

Two baboons and three ushers hurried themselves upon John Smith, who began to fight like a maniac, screaming at the top of his voice. Those in the back of the house had jumped to their feet with the first yell. Now Smith's cries were mixed with the chattering and barking of the eight baboons.

Down in front a woman began to scream hysterically. It was her voice which stampered the six baboons who had up to that point taken no part in the battle. One of the brutes sprang upon the railing and started for the footlights over the heads of the people, and as he went he used his sheet of American Beauties as a club. The other baboons followed him, shrieking and chattering like crazy things. One baboon would have been enough to create a disturbance; eight of them complicated the situation somewhat.

A panic resulted. Men and women were swept out of their seats and carried in a wave toward the front of the house. The aisles were full of struggling, screaming human beings, and behind them came the baboons, like hairy furies.

From their seats in the upper box Sanguinetti and Sweeney could not see what was causing the excitement. They saw only the panic swirling down the aisles toward the orchestra pit.

"Hell's loose in the back of the house!" shouted Sweeney above the clamor. "Let's jump down on the stage and beat it out of the back door!"

"You said it for me!" yelled Sanguinetti excitedly.

Just then the scornful little lady called attention to her presence with a succession of piercing screams.

"Mamma, mamma!" she wailed.

"We can't leave this poor kid here," said Sweeney. "Got to take her along somehow."

He picked the child up in his arms, and she clung to him, still screaming with fright.

"It's all right now," said Sweeney. "It's all right. Cheese on the noise, little one. We'll get you to your mamma, Herman!"

"Vot iss?" demanded the big German.

"Herman, you jump down on the stage. Sanguinetti, you drop into the box below here. I'll pass the kid along to you and you toss her to Schultz; I'll follow. Quick, now!"

It was the commanding officer speaking, and, like trained soldiers, Schultz and Sanguinetti obeyed. By this time the uproar in the back of the house had begun to subside, but the sight of two men leaping from an upper stage box did not tend to restore public confidence.

One of the men had jumped on the stage. A third man appeared in an upper box with a child clasped in his arms.

"Now then," he yelled, "Sweeney to Sanguinetti to Schultz! All set?"

Sanguinetti braced himself against the rail below.

Sweeney leaped far out over the roaring abyss, with the screaming, screaming child balanced in his muscular hands.

A loud shout of protest went up from the mass of humanity jammed into the aisles. Sweeney gauged distance and drop with a practiced eye, and the yell of warning changed to a gasp as the little white bundle flashed downward.

Sweeney, Sanguinetti and Schultz trotted down an alley, chuckling to themselves.

"And nobody but us could have done it so slick," said Sweeney. "I wonder how you'd score that play?"

They found out in the morning. You might think that an affair of that sort would give a press agent pause, so to speak.

Nothing of the kind.

Harley Q. Walker needed an alibi badly, also a scapegoat, and fate sent him three of the best little scapegoats that ever went bleating into the wilderness.

In some subtle way, known only to press agents and diplomats, Walker contrived to cast most of the blame for the entire affair upon the battle-scarred shoulders of Sweeney, Sanguinetti and Schultz.

Y-e-e-s; he admitted that there had been a trifling disturbance in the back of the house, but that was nothing. It would have blown over in a minute and the people would have gone back to their seats but for the melodramatic horseplay introduced by three rowdy ball players who belonged to a visiting team.

"They're bad fellows," explained Walker to the newspaper men. "They're always getting soured and creating a row. Look up their records if you don't believe me. Why, they might have killed that poor little kid, throwing her around like that. Her mother is going to sue for heavy damages—shock to the kid's nervous system and all that sort of thing. And there wasn't any excuse. Hand it to 'em good and plenty!"

Johnny Moore read all the papers every morning in bed.

This was one of the front page headlines which greeted him:

ROWDY BALL PLAYERS CREATE PANIC IN THEATER!

This was another:

SWEENEY, SANGUINETTI AND SCHULTZ AGAIN GO ON A RAMPAGE!

And this was the way one of the articles began:

Not content with their rowdy conduct on the diamond, three ball players named Sanguinetti, Schultz and Sweeney last night broke up a performance of "The Gilded Lily" and endangered hundreds of precious lives. As a result several suits for heavy damages may be filed.

Reputation can be a fearsome thing at times.

Before Sweeney, Sanguinetti and Schultz rolled out of their beds in the morning the fate of the international alliance was sealed. They rolled out when Johnny Moore sent for them, and they went up on the mammoth carpet with clear consciences. They had not seen the morning papers, but Johnny shook them at the entrants as they entered.

When the manager got through frothing at the mouth the defendants began to talk to him all at the same time.

"A-b-b-b, shut up!" snapped the manager. "Think you can play me for a snicker all the time? This is where I've got you with the goods! I'm going to split this combination so far apart that no two of you will ever be together again. That's what I'm going to do. I wish they had a baseball league in China!"

Considering the limitations of organized baseball, Moore did fairly well. Sweeney went to Boston, Sanguinetti went to Chicago and poor old Schultz remained with the Mudhens. Moore said that Schultz would have been all right but for Sweeney and Sanguinetti.

And all, mind you, for an act of pure heroism.

It doesn't seem right even to this day.

ECCENTRIC DE QUINCEY.

He Often Greeted Visitors While Half-Dressed and Bare Footed.

De Quincey's habits were so simple as to be almost ascetic, and he subsisted upon the lightest possible diet. His digestive trouble and neuralgic suffering, which first led to his taking opium, caused him early to lose his teeth, and from the extreme delicacy of his system he could eat nothing less capable of mastication than bread, so that article with a little soup or coffee was apt to comprise his whole dinner.

In reference to his manner of dress his daughter has said:

"His dress, unfortunately, he neither cared for himself, nor would he let others care for it. I say unfortunately, because his carelessness gave rise among punctilious people, unaccustomed to eccentric habits, to an impression of poverty for which there was no foundation. It might be that a thought occurred to him in the midst of some of his irregular processes of dressing or undressing (I should say some thought did generally strike him at that time, and he would stop with his coat just taken off, or not put on, without stockings at all, or with one off and one on, and becoming lost in what grew out of this thought, he would work for hours, hardly even noticing the coffee which was his chief support at such times."

"In the midst of this absorbing work would arrive visitors, of whom there were many, probably from such a distance that they could not be turned back without sight of the object of their long pilgrimage, upon which my father, with the unaffected courtesy which was one of the great charms of his character, would appear at once rather than keep them waiting while he put on his stockings, or whatever may be wanting or which was just likely in the wrong place, giving rise to awed impressions of poverty with some, while those who could withdraw their unaccustomed eyes from the nakedness of the land, as expounded by his feet, might have seen in his surroundings signs of scrupulous neatness, sufficient comfort and refinement enough to reassure them on this point."

"His presence at home was the signal for a crowd of beggars, among whom, borrowed babies and drunken old women were sure of the largest share of the sympathy he refused to none." — From Caroline Tinker's "Hawthorne and His Publisher."

PRONOUNCING ENGLISH.

Going Astray on the Correct Use of "u" and "ew" Sounds.

A curious feature of the English language as it is spoken in this part of the United States is the prevalence of a dual system of pronunciation. The dictionaries tell us unequivocally that we should pronounce "dew," "knew" and "stew" as we do "few," and that "student," "stupid" and similar words should be enunciated as if they were spelled "studeudent" and "stupid."

Nobody, apparently, disputes the correctness of this manner of pronouncing "u" and "ew"—yet here is a rule very much more honored in the breach than in the observance. Except for stage folks, the faculties and some of the students of schools and colleges and a few persons who make a point of precise speaking, the academic sound of "u" is disregarded almost universally.

It is by no means through ignorance that people say "stoo" and "stoooid." There are worthy persons who seem to feel that a good American really ought to say "stoo" and "stoooid." They think, apparently, that the orthodox "u" and "ew" are Anglicisms and are used in this country only by persons pedantic or "affected."

Of course, for all practical purposes one way of pronouncing is as good as another and usage has made both forms correct. Nevertheless, the right use of "u" and "ew" adds music and variety to the English language, and the younger generation might do well to pronounce according to the dictionary and gradually overcome an "Americanism" that has no real good excuse for being.

THE KITCHEN GUPBOARD

SEASONABLE JELLIES.

THESE may be prepared by the addition of gelatin, which will reduce their cost.

Rhubarb Jelly.—Take a quart of rhubarb after it has been cut up, a quarter of a pint of water, the juice of one lemon, the grated rind of a lemon, two tablespoonfuls of water, a pound of sugar, a half an ounce of gelatin and a few drops of cochineal. Wash, skin and cut into one inch lengths sufficient rhubarb to fill a quart basin. Put into a stewpan with the sugar, the juice and grated rind of lemon and a quarter of a pint of water. Simmer very gently until the rhubarb is thoroughly cooked. Dissolve the gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of water, strain and add it to the rhubarb. Beat the mixture for a few minutes, color it with a few drops of cochineal and pour it into a wet mold. When set turn it out and pour a little boiled custard round it.

A Nutritious Dish.

Egg Jelly.—Take half a pint of water, six ounces of loaf sugar, two lemons, two eggs, a half ounce of gelatin. Wipe and peel the lemons thinly, squeeze and strain the juice. Put the gelatin in a saucepan, add to the sugar, lemon peel, lemon juice and water. Beat up the eggs, add them to the other ingredients and stir over a moderate fire till the gelatin is melted, but be careful not to let it boil. Rinse some small molds with cold water, fill with the mixture and leave them to set. When firm turn out the jellies, arrange them in a glass dish, reserving one for chopping. Sprinkle a piece of paper with cold water, drop the jelly on it and sprinkle the chopped jelly in the bottom of the dish.

Prune Jelly.—Take six ounces of prunes, a half pint of water, an inch stick of cinnamon, an ounce and a half of powdered sugar, an ounce of gelatin, two tablespoonfuls of water and two cloves. Wash the prunes and put them into a saucepan with half a pint of water, the sugar, cinnamon and cloves. Simmer gently till the prunes are quite tender, then remove the cinnamon and cloves and beat the prunes briskly with a fork. Dissolve the gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of water, strain and add to the other ingredients. Color with a few drops of cochineal and pour into a wetted mold. When firm set serve with whipped cream.

Made With Gelatin.

Orange Jelly.—Take half a pint of orange juice, the juice of two lemons, two ounces of powdered sugar, a half pint of water, the rind of three oranges and three-quarters of an ounce of gelatin. Wipe and peel the oranges thinly, put the rind in a stewpan with the sugar, water and gelatin. Stir over the fire till the gelatin is dissolved, cover the pan, stand on one side and leave it for ten minutes. Strain the mixture, add the orange and lemon juice previously strained, mix well and pour into a wetted mold. When firm turn out and serve.

Anna Thompson.

Spoiled Musicians.

Rubinstein disappointed of marriage for musicians. Just before his death he spoke sadly of his Russian lady pupils. "What have I wasted all my time on them for?" he asked irritably. "Every one married! It's too provoking! Here they are, spoiled forever for art life. What did they study for?"

The London Musical World remarks that "those who ask why we have a great lady composers may be left to think of these things."

A Narrow Range of Choice.

Sylvia, supple and slender, and Aunt Belle, bulky and benign, had returned from a shopping tour. Each had been trying to buy a ready-made suit.

When they returned home Sylvia was asked what success each had in her efforts to be fitted. "Well," said Sylvia, "I got along pretty well, but Aunt Belle is getting so fat that about all she can get ready-made is an umbrella.—Youth's Companion."

A Bit Different.

Towne—"There's one thing about my wife—she makes up her mind if she can't afford a thing that she doesn't need it. Bowne—Something like my wife, only she buys it first and makes up her mind afterward.—Philadelphia Press."

But Light.

Cholly—"I have something on my mind, Wobah. Robert—Stop a minute! Sure enough, there is a cobweb on top of your head.—Baltimore American."

Determined to Visit Birthplace.

"It was the only way I could visit my old home before I die." This is Henry Sack's excuse for disappearing from his farm near Oak Mills, about three weeks ago, and sailing to Europe. His son, John Sacks, received a letter from him recently. This was the first word his family received from him, although they learned that he sailed from New York on a transatlantic liner. Mr. Sacks is now at Ubeline, Prussia, his birthplace. He is staying with relatives, he wrote, but he expects to return in a month. He often expressed a wish to visit Germany, but his relatives objected on account of his age. He is eighty-two years old.—Kansas City Journal.

Out of the Question.

William H. Crane was twitted because his lines in "The Senator Keeps House," his new play, are not witty. "I had the matter up with the authorities," retorted Crane, "and after I had aired my views at length she blandly replied: 'You can't expect a senator to be witty in his own house!'"

Put the frosty bit on your own tongue before placing it in the horse's mouth.

There are no sausages made or pork chops that beat those from a 225 pound to 250 pound pig. In both cases the meat is tender, delicious and appetizing.

If the balls of binding twine that many find it necessary to keep from one harvest season to another are sprinkled with flowers of sulphur rats and mice will not touch them.

The Pennsylvania experiment station has found that when used as a part of a properly balanced ration for dairy cows rye meal is equal to corn in the production of milk and butter.

A few dollars invested in a good fanning mill is well worth while, for its judicious use will mean clean seed, a better stand and better yields and will keep the land free from many harmful weeds.

A Guernsey heifer owned by a Minnesota farmer has established a new record in the production of butter fat for heifers between two and a half and three years of age. Her output was 583½ pounds of butter fat, equivalent to 700 pounds of commercial butter.

According to the New York experiment station, it requires one pound of shells or their equivalent to supply the lime needed for seven dozen eggs. Grit is for grinding the food in the gizzard, and unless enough of it is supplied indigestion will likely result.

The farm value of the potato crop of the United States in 1910 is estimated at $228,000,000. In spite of the fact that the yield was smaller than for a number of years, the return for the growers was larger than for any previous year, with the exception of 1911, when the value of the crop was $234,000,000.

One of the best authorities on horse breeding in the country asserts that progeny cannot be expected from an inferior mare no matter how good the sire may be. There should be a hint here for horse raisers when the quality referred to is often responsible for a hundred or more dollars in the price of a horse that is sent to market.

The Wisconsin experiment station has for some years past been making cheese from pasteurized milk—that is, milk heated to a point that destroys bacterial life. It has been found that the process of pasteurization has resulted in an increase in the weight of the cheese from a given quantity of milk amounting to about 5 per cent, while the cheese made has been sold at the ruling market prices.

The federal department of agriculture suggests vigorous co-operation among farmers as the most effective means of killing chinch bugs, a pest which it is estimated has done $350,000,000 worth of damage to crops in the United States during the past sixteen years. It is the most fatally destructive pest that attacks corn, wheat and other cereals. The destruction of the insects during the winter and early spring before they become active and enter the young wheat in the spring is recommended as the most effective method of keeping the insects in check.

A feeding experiment with ewes is being conducted at the Iowa experiment station, the results of which will be awaited with much interest by breeders and feeders of sheep. The ewes which will be used for the experiment have been divided into four lots. One lot will be fed silage and alfalfa, another silage and clover, a third silage, oat straw and cottonseed meal, while the fourth bunch will get silage, oat straw and oilmeal. All four rations are well balanced, but it will be interesting to learn which lot of ewes produce the heaviest and most vigorous lambs on the cheapest outlay of feed.

The rural carriers out of a certain Kansas town, upon order of the post-office authorities, a short time ago painted their wagons red to serve as a sort of distinguishing mark of their vocation. As one of them was jogging peacefully along his route the other day he was "distinguished" by a Jersey bull in a nearby pasture. The animal vaulted the fence, bellored a challenge and closed this outfit, supposed to be vouchsafed the protection of Uncle Sam, a distance of two miles. This stretch was made in record time in other districts where complaint is made that the rural service is slow Uncle Sam might accelerate it considerably by issuing the same order of having the wagons of the laggards painted red.

Would Revise Old Adage. "Save the pennies" may be good advice," says the Alfalfa Sage, "but I still contend that it is better to save the dollars."

THE NEWEST COATS ARE SHORT

Do you like these snappy short coats? They are the last word for spring. The popularity of the tunic, the panner and the puff, is responsible for them. Many of these little coats are bolero-like, others are miniature cutaways or box-coats.

It is remarkable how we accustom ourselves to the new modes and grow to admire something which at first appeared more than extreme.

Also they appear to be the height of economy; for if one desires she may wear one of these little coats with several different skirts. They are fashioned of plain fabrics and worn with plaid skirts or conversely they are fashioned of plaid or brocade, to be worn with plain skirts.

No. 8203-8204 shows an unusually smart suit with a short coat and draped skirt; the skirt is a cotton duvetyn in white and the coat is a black and white novelty cotton. This is a most appropriate suit for Southern wear.

These novelty cottons are most interesting; they are so dainty and charmingly patterned. They are wide and may be purchased from 75 cents a yard and up.

No. 8241 is a kimono coat for a girl of from 2 to 10 years; as illustrated it is developed in pin striped serge, with contrasting collar and cuffs.

No. 8204—sizes 22 to 30.

FOUR OF FAMILY SLAIN

Woman and Three Children Murdered and House Burned.

Little Rock, Ark., April 4.—An unknown assassin, armed with an axe, murdered Mrs. Elbin Francis and three of her children in their home, near Fendley, Clark county, having previously set fire to the house.

Mr. Francis, the husband and father, and a fourth child narrowly escaped the same fate.

According to statements made by Francis, he was awakened by the barking of his dog, to find the house in flames. He saw the assassin enter his wife's room, carrying an axe.

Believing the intruder was searching for him, Francis said he ran into the yard in an effort to draw the man away from the house, but the slayer remained and killed Mrs. Francis and the three children, who ranged from two to six years of age. Francis said he then ran to the house and the assassin fled.

DENIES ATTACK MADE JUDGE ILL

Weand Defended by Colleague in Norristown.

Norristown, Pa., April 4.—In announcing that after the hearing of the Kleinman and Blasband application for a wholesale liquor license, court would adjourn until Tuesday, President Judge Aaron S. Swartz said:

"I am sorry to announce that Judge Weand is not able to sit in court. He is suffering from illness that has interfered with his comfort and ability to work for some weeks. He was under pain and discomfort during the past week or more, but persisted in taking part in the work, with a desire to do his full duty. He expects to resume his accustomed place on the bench next week.

"The article in a Norristown newspaper is not responsible for his absence. Nothing that the paper could say would in the least shake our faith in the judge's integrity, fairness, ability as a jurist and his impartial administration of the law. I am sure that I voice the sentiment of the bar, as well as of the people of the county at large. His record is all-sufficient to answer any attack upon his character or conduct in the administration of the law."

The judge was referring to the action of Preston Hood, of Philadelphia, who, through his counsel, Francis Tracy Tobin, of Philadelphia, had sent a petition to Governor Tener asking for the removal of Judge Weand.

Judge Weand has been suffering severely since February, and there are many who believe that the publicity given the attack upon him has more to do with his present illness than is admitted.

WOULD REMIT CANAL TOLLS

Edmonds, of Philadelphia, Introduces Bill in the House.

Washington, April 4.—A bill providing for the remission of Panama canal tolls paid by American vessels on traffic between the eastern and western coasts of the United States and between these coasts and Mexico and Central and South America, was introduced in the house by Representative Edmonds, of Philadelphia.

The bill would authorize the president to enter into contracts with the steamship lines which shall be granted this exemption for ten years, the tolls to be payable from the United States treasury every six months.

Ships to receive this privilege must be capable of making at least fourteen knots an hour speed and must carry the mails without charge. They also must prove they are not controlled by or run in conjunction with any railroad.

DEFERS SHORTAGE REPORT TEN YEARS

Bookkeeper Knew of Irregularities in 1902.

Wilmington, Del., April 4.—Declaring that he did not report irregular findings in the books of the People's National bank, of Middletown, until 1912, although he discovered them in 1902, the testimony of W. G. Lockwood, head bookkeeper of the bank, featured the trial of George D. Kelley, former cashier of the bank, charged with making a false report of the condition of the institution in a statement to the government.

In cross-examination Robert Stockton, a representative of a Philadelphia firm of accountants, declared that in his opinion certain accounts were "juggled" and that the figures were in the handwriting of Mr. Lockwood.

Then Mr. Lockwood, the bookkeeper, was called. A juror asked Lockwood why he did not report the alleged irregularities in the books to the bank examiner. He said he did not do so because Mr. Kelley told him the accounts would be straightened out in a short time. This was in 1902. In 1912 he said he reported the matter to Mr. Townsend, the president of the bank. He reported the discrepancies during an examination of the books, which led to Mr. Kelley's indictment. Mr. Lockwood testified that a trial balance showed a difference of more than $18,000, and that Mr. Kelley, the cashier, asked him to alter the figures in some inactive accounts to conform with the trial balance. He testified that he told him he would not do this, and that Mr. Kelley changed the figures.

Mr. Lockwood is a prominent church member in Middletown. It is believed that he will be connected with the case when the defense of Kelley opens.

WOMAN HOLDS FORT

With Shotgun Prevents Railroad Employees From Tearing House Down.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 4.—The home of Mrs. Mary Martin, of Ashley, who held at bay a force of men from the Central Railroad of New Jersey, who were sent to her home to tear it down, took on the appearance of a fort when the woman placed a small American flag in each window and threatened to shoot any company employee who set foot on her land.

Mrs. Martin remained on guard all night and with her shotgun sat at a window on the second floor, ready to shoot, she declared.

Mrs. Martin said she had held the property for the last twenty-six years and that the company has tried to take it without paying her. She also said she had been told that the state police would visit her, but she said she would give the police a battle if they bothered her.

MODEL HOMES OF ESSEN WORKMEN

Germany a Leader in Solving Problems of Housing.

GUNMAKER AS A PIONEER.

Foresight of Germans Provided Comfortable and Adequate Housing Facilities For Workers—Krupp First to Put Idea Into Effect.

The foresight of the Germans was responsible for the provision of comfortable and adequate housing facilities for the workers, says Wilhelm Wiegand in Town Development. Over fifty years ago it was realized that an investment for efficiency was the most profitable investment possible, and this realization was followed up by the conclusion that such efficiency can be secured only when the workman has a home and is cared for that his health and happiness are assured. The truth of this hypothesis is now so generally acknowledged that its statement appears trite. But fifty years ago the theory had never been tried and proved true, and it must have been difficult to squander good marks and pennings for the consummation of a visionary ideal.

The founder of the great Krupp gun works at Essen, however, with more than native German sagacity, was perhaps the first to comprehend the concrete value of the vision. So in the year 1860 twelve houses that were to rent at a most modest figure were built for the convenience of the Krupp employees. After that the advance was rapid. Within seven years 318 more houses had been added to the colony, and as the plant grew year by year the number of houses increased until there are now over 6,000. Even this number of dwellings, however, provides for but one-third of the employees of the great shops, for the Krupp interests furnish labor for about 40,000.

Unlike other colonies that have been founded to provide a home for the workman at the least possible cost, the colony of Essen has not been forced to sacrifice beauty and comfort to mere utility. Built primarily to serve the purpose of utility, compactly arranged for the strictest economy of space as the houses are, they maintain an atmosphere of charm and individuality that goes far toward making them real homes for their tenants. Indeed, a glance at the ivy covered walls, shaded windows, patches of shrubbery and flowers, gives one the impression of a small agricultural village rather than of a thundering industrial center. The buildings have been arranged so that every family may have its beautiful share of light and open air. Each dwelling has a small lawn and a garden space for vegetables and flower gardens. The interior of the cottage is as attractive as the exterior. Every house contains at least two rooms, and the great majority have from four to six rooms and often a basement. In accordance with the prevailing custom the main room serves the double function of kitchen and living room. This room, always immaculately clean, is always comfortably warm from the heat of the stove. The whitewashed walls are covered with the shining kitchen utensils that are used through out the country as well decorations.

For comfortable habitations in Essen the workmen pay from 100 to 300 marks a year, the higher figure providing a five room cottage in the most favorable environment. Imagine any house in America renting for from $23.50 to $71.40 a year! At this price, of course, the proprietors can make no money, and, although they calculate their gain at 1 per cent per annum, the expense of deterioration must be estimated at 3 per cent, so that the Krupp company stands a yearly loss of 2 per cent on every house. To offset this loss, however, the company has discovered through the experience of the fifty years that the efficiency of their workmen has been tripled and that the loss from strikes and labor difficulties in general has been reduced to a negligible fraction. That the company has never questioned the wisdom of sacrificing a small amount of money to a great gain in service is most conclusively demonstrated by the continuance of the policy of home building.

Remarkable Bible Verses.

The eighth verse of the third chapter of Zephaniah contains every letter including the finals, of the Hebrew language, while one will find in the twenty-first verse of the seventh chapter of Ezra every letter of the English alphabet except j. The verse reads as follows: "And I, even I, Artaxerxes the king, do make a decree to all the treasurers which are beyond the river, that whatsoever Ezra the priest, the scribe of the law of the God of heaven, shall require of you, it be done speedily."—Youth's World.

Would Reclaim Zuder Zee.

A great project is again before the people of Holland—the draining of the Zuder Zee. The sea, which, as every one knows, is at the north of Holland and covers an area of fifty thousand hectares, a hectare being practically 2½ acres. Just half a century ago a scheme to drain the southern portion of the sea was first mooted and, although it received considerable support the opposition was greater, but now an association has been formed and a bill will be introduced into the chamber. The promoters see that with an increased population means must be taken to enlarge the country, and this reclamation of the sea is suggested as capable of accomplishment. If the sea is conquered there are several lakes which can be dealt with later.—Mundus.

A DOUBLE TRIANGULAR AFFAIR

By SARAH BAXTER

Ned Truesdale was born with a fair intellectual endowment, but there was one feature in his makeup that kept him constantly in hot water. As it is the nature of a bird to pour forth melody, so was it in Ned's nature to make love.

Finally he received a note from Miss Belle Stevens, a girl to whom he had told his story and who, not knowing of his idiosyncrasy, was preparing her trousseau. Having heard of his attentions to another, in her missive she stated that she did not propose to be so ignominiously treated. She scorned to sue for breach of promise, and the only method left her of punishing him was to act just as if she were a man and use a man's methods. She was in some respects a new woman and had lost her grandfather in a duel. These facts taken together, she had decided to give him his choice between keeping his promise and giving her satisfaction.

The most natural thing for Ned to do was to inform Miss Marian Jones, the last girl to whom he had given his offer, of the alternative that had been offered him by her rival, with a request that she show him a way out of the difficulty. He sent Miss Jones the letter he had received from Miss Stevens, whereupon Miss Jones, who was a militant suffragette, returned it with an indorsement written in a bold hand on the face of it to the effect that if he did not keep faith with her (Miss Jones) she, too, would demand satisfaction under the code.

"The plot thickens," remarked Ned to himself, and, fearing to confide in any more girls lest he get more duels on his hands, he went straightway to his friend Tom Alsop and laid the two letters before him.

"There's but one thing for you to do, Ned: you must bluff 'em. Write a letter to each stating that you have been unaccustomed to deal with women as with men, but if she insists on being so treated you have no option but to grant her request."

"What, fight two women?" "It won't come to that. When they find that you're not to be trifled with they'll haul in their horns, and you'll be free of both of them."

Ned was not so certain of thus gaining his freedom and told his friend so. "If you wish to make the matter sure," said Tom, "you must follow the matter up by really and seriously engaging yourself to a girl whom you would like to marry. Is there such a girl?"

"I don't know. I feel more at home with Helen Swift than with any other girl. I reckon I'll settle on her."

"Well, then, send word, as I have told you, to Miss Stevens and Miss Jones and propose to Miss Swift. When you are really engaged these two will let you alone."

Ned wrote the notes as advised and the same evening proposed to Miss Swift. To the latter he declared he was in earnest, but confessed that he was in trouble with other girls. The young lady not only accepted him, but promised to stand by him no matter what the other girls might do.

The next day Tom Alsop received an earnest request from Ned to come to see him. On Tom's arrival Ned declared that he had received two formal challenges to mortal combat. What should he do? Would Tom take the matter up in his behalf? Tom said that he would, and went immediately to his own friend, Dick Thurston, laid the matter before him and it was agreed that Tom should act for Ned in the case of Miss Stevens, while Dick acted for him in the case of Miss Jones.

The next thing Ned heard from Tom was that a meeting had been arranged with both Miss Stevens and Miss Jones for the next morning at a secluded spot in the country, the two girls to draw lots as to which should have the first crack at her recreant lover. Ned was thrown into a state of consternation at this and endeavored to induce his second to find some way out of the matter without bloodshed. Tom claimed that it was not in his power to have the affair called off and advised him to consult with the lady he had last proposed to and who had promised to stand by him. Ned went at once to Miss Swift, who, after consideration, agreed to go with him on the field and make an effort to pacify the girls.

On the appointed morning Ned drove to the home of this last and only true ladylove, and the two arrived on the ground in due time, finding the two principals and Ned's two seconds there ready for the fray. She stepped forward and addressed them as follows: "Ladies, it seems ridiculous to spill blood on account of one man when there are three here, or one for each girl. I am sure these gentlemen, Mr. Alsop and Mr. Thurston, cannot be insensible to the charms of Miss Stevens and Miss Jones."

Instinctively each girl named looked at the man she preferred. What could the men do? Nothing but surrender to the girl who had looked at him, and the affair, so far as Ned and his last and best girl was concerned, was ended then and there.

Mr. Truesdale was the most delighted man in the universe. He strutted about, glorying in his reprieve and rowing over his seconds.

The seconds subsequently each sent him a challenge, but the matter was amicably arranged.

ILLINOIS STATE GRANGE.

Some of the More Important Matters Discussed at Annual Meeting.

The Illinois state grange held one of the most notable sessions in many years at Alton, Ill. T. A. Denney of Rockford, lately overseer, presided, he having been called to the office owing to the death of the late master, Robert Eaton of Elwood. Many questions affecting the progress and permanent prosperity of the farmer in general were studied and discussed.

Among the subjects indorsed and which are a part of the grange's working policy are good roads, federal and state aid for good roads to market places and shipping points, rural credit system with strict governmental supervision, condemnation of the present system of taxation with the recommendation that taxation be made a subject of serious study by the members of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry, to the end that the farmers may be able to give intelligent support toward a right and proper solution.

The meeting reaffirmed the position of the grange favoring the consolidation of country schools and township high schools; passed a resolution favoring the use of school buildings for public and neighborhood meetings when not in use for school purposes; indorsed the policy of President Wilson in respect to Mexico, also the policy of the secretary of the interior, Franklin K. Lane, respecting the disposition and supervision of the public lands. Other topics discussed by the delegates were "The Evils of Short Term Tenancy, Both From the Standpoint of the Landlord and the Tenant," and "Soil Depletion and How It May Be Checked."

The entire session was marked by the utmost good will and harmony, with a serious desire to extend the influence of the Order and its many benefits to a larger number of the Illinois farmers. The next meeting will be held in Peoria.

Unexpected Testimonial.

Little Bilderson prided himself upon his good appetite and his capacity for amusing. He was dining with a friend a few nights ago, and did his best to keep his host and hostess with their six-year-old daughter amused, and at the same time managed to do ample justice to the good things provided. "Oh, dear, Mr. Bilderson," remarked the little one, after the guest's wittiest sally, "I wish you'd come here to dinner every day." Bilderson positively beamed satisfaction. "Do you, dear?" he smiled. "Why?" "Cause," came the reply, as the observant maiden glanced round the table, "cause there wouldn't be anything cold to eat the next day."
